

SaaS Pricing Sensitivity Report

CloudHR Pro · saas_b2b

Generated on 2026-06-29T05:47:18.080431

Executive Summary

CloudHR Pro's current pricing strategy is misaligned with its feature offerings, resulting in underpriced power-user features and a lack of clear upgrade incentives. The most impactful fix is to restructure the tier system to better reflect the value provided to customers. This can be achieved through a combination of price adjustments and feature realignments.

Revenue Scenario Analysis

Scenario	Projected MRR	User Loss %	Net Change %
Current (Baseline)	$31243.00	—	—
+10% Price Increase	$33336.28	3.0%	+6.7%
+20% Price Increase	$34492.27	8.0%	+10.4%
+30% Price Increase	$33305.04	18.0%	+6.6%

✓ Recommended: +20% — +20% increase yields highest projected MRR of $34,492.27 (+10.4% change) with an estimated 8.0% user loss — best balance of revenue gain and acceptable churn.

Feature Placement Audit

Feature	Current Tier	Classification	Recommended Action
API access	Basic	gatekeeper	move to Growth tier
Payroll processing	Basic	undifferentiated	rethink positioning
Dedicated HR consultant	Enterprise	right_placed	keep
Custom reports	Growth	right_placed	keep

Feature	Current Tier	Classification	Recommended Action
Employee profiles	Basic	right_placed	keep
Attendance tracking	Basic	right_placed	keep
Performance reviews	Growth	right_placed	keep
Multi-location support	Growth	right_placed	keep
SSO login	Enterprise	right_placed	keep
Custom integrations	Enterprise	right_placed	keep
Audit logs	Enterprise	right_placed	keep

⚠️ API access is underpriced and should be moved to a higher tier

Competitor Benchmark

OVERPRICED

Our prices are above the market rate due to the custom quote-based pricing of Rippling.

Features We Are Missing:

- Global HRIS
- Global Benefits
- Global Spend
- Contractor of Record
- Entity vs. EOR Cost Calculator

Our Unique Differentiators:

- Dedicated HR consultant
- Custom integrations
- Audit logs

Recommended Pricing Strategies

Optimize	Transform	Enterprise Focus
+12%	+30%	+25%
LOW RISK	HIGH RISK	MEDIUM RISK
The conservative strategy involves making minor adjustments to the existing tier structure, including a 10% price increase across all tiers and relocating the API access feature to the Growth tier. This approach minimizes disruption while still addressing some of the key pricing issues. By maintaining the current tier names and making targeted feature adjustments, CloudHR Pro can improve its revenue without alienating its customer base.	The aggressive strategy involves a significant overhaul of the pricing model, including the introduction of a new tier structure with renamed tiers and substantially adjusted pricing. This approach aims to maximize revenue growth but comes with a higher risk of customer churn. By focusing on the high-end market and emphasizing premium features, CloudHR Pro can potentially achieve substantial revenue increases.	The strategic approach focuses on repositioning CloudHR Pro in the market with an emphasis on enterprise customers. This involves renaming tiers to better reflect the target market, adjusting prices to be more competitive in the enterprise space, and highlighting premium features that appeal to large businesses. By focusing on the high-end market, CloudHR Pro can increase its average revenue per user and improve its market positioning.
<table><tr><th>Tier</th><th>Price</th><th>Target</th></tr><tr><td>Basic</td><td>$109</td><td>small businesses</td></tr><tr><td>Growth</td><td>$149</td><td>medium-sized businesses</td></tr><tr><td>Enterprise</td><td>$249</td><td>large enterprises</td></tr></table>	Tier	Price	Target	Basic	$109	small businesses	Growth	$149	medium-sized businesses	Enterprise	$249	large enterprises	<table><tr><th>Tier</th><th>Price</th><th>Target</th></tr><tr><td>Essentials</td><td>$99</td><td>very small businesses or startups</td></tr><tr><td>Pro</td><td>$199</td><td>small to medium-sized businesses</td></tr><tr><td>Corporate</td><td>$399</td><td>large enterprises</td></tr></table>	Tier	Price	Target	Essentials	$99	very small businesses or startups	Pro	$199	small to medium-sized businesses	Corporate	$399	large enterprises	<table><tr><th>Tier</th><th>Price</th><th>Target</th></tr><tr><td>Business</td><td>$149</td><td>small to medium-sized businesses</td></tr><tr><td>Enterprise</td><td>$299</td><td>large businesses</td></tr><tr><td>Global</td><td>$499</td><td>multinational corporations</td></tr></table>	Tier	Price	Target	Business	$149	small to medium-sized businesses	Enterprise	$299	large businesses	Global	$499	multinational corporations
Tier	Price	Target
Basic	$109	small businesses
Growth	$149	medium-sized businesses
Enterprise	$249	large enterprises
Tier	Price	Target
Essentials	$99	very small businesses or startups
Pro	$199	small to medium-sized businesses
Corporate	$399	large enterprises
Tier	Price	Target
Business	$149	small to medium-sized businesses
Enterprise	$299	large businesses
Global	$499	multinational corporations
Steps: • conduct customer surveys to gauge reaction to price changes • realign feature sets according to the new tier structure • update marketing materials to reflect the new pricing strategy	Steps: • develop a comprehensive communication plan to announce the pricing changes to customers • offer temporary discounts to existing customers to ease the transition • enhance the sales team's training to effectively sell the new tier structure	Steps: • refine the sales strategy to target large enterprises • develop strategic partnerships with complementary businesses • invest in marketing campaigns to raise awareness of the new enterprise-focused pricing strategy																																				